The occasional rallies of the market indicated the large part played by professional short selling in the weakness. But the large amounts of long stock were disodged by the bear tactics of the professional traders and each successive rally until the last one was availed of as a basis for renewed selling. The first effective rally of the day came after the publication of estimates of the weekly cash changes, which showed an excess of receipts over shipments of $2,500,000, however, do not figure in this estimate. The grain markets reflected the large closing up of accounts in expectation of the appearance of the monthly crop statement after the closing today, and speculators in stocks were not able to get much light on the crop situation from the movement of the grain markets.
